About me

Hi! I am 22 years old, an ambitious graduate of the Faculty of Information Systems and Technologies at SibFU, aspiring to make a career in programming. My goal is to constantly improve my skills and make a significant contribution to the creation of innovative applications.

While studying and working, I try to always go beyond the current knowledge expected in the project and broaden my mind. At the moment, I have succeeded in learning C# and Python, the stack of techs needed to create Django sites from scratch, and also wrote a diploma application in React Native. Thanks to the skill of quick research and analysis of material, I am able to quickly understand the necessary technologies and solutions.

In everyday life, I am interested in photography (including film photography) and design, I love to travel and prefer outdoor activities such as skiing or snowboarding. I'm also passionate about exploring a variety of areas, from how to paint a car to financial issues and politics. I am always ready to dive into new topics and challenges.
